Commentary

Net performance of OCP Senior Credit Fund was 1.61% and 7.99% in October and year-to-date, respectively. The "risk on" market sentiment resumed in October as the U.S. government reopened and investors grew more convinced of continued bond buying by the U.S. Fed through the fourth quarter. This led to the higher monthly returns coming from the higher risk assets with equities leading. The CS Leveraged Loan Index, CS High Yield Index, and S&P500 returned 0.80%, 2.42%, and 4.60% in the month, respectively.

During the month, price appreciation and interest income contributed equally to the Portfolio's return. Only two positions actually lost money and neither was significant or noteworthy. There continued to be no defaults in the portfolio.
